Boutique-Builder Care, Four States

A house is built once. A relationship with the people who built it lasts a lot longer. That is the part most builders forget, and the part we care about most. We listen first, we build to last, and we stay reachable long after closing.

Around 300 families move into a Ridgeline home each year, across more than 20 active communities in New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, and Florida. Big enough to do the work right. Small enough that you are never just a file number. Every home is priced honestly from day one. The number you see is where it starts, and Jordan walks you through exactly what your version costs.
